Summary

Part I

If fundamental rights are protected, then the rest of the conception would be provided as well. If the court would be fair, then my son or daughter would not protect his/her own rights.

Everything cannot be done by the government in the society. But, of course, the government should monitor the situation and provide accountability.

Women should have the rights for abortion, if the situation is dangerous for the life of that woman. But, I am against the abortion in general.

I think, first of all, Azerbaijan should help its citizens. I mean, we cannot provide better life for our refugees and IDPs, ordinary citizens in our countries.

If there is a need, it might be possible. But, from my point of view, there is no need to study in their language at the university in Azerbaijan.

If any country like Russia can intervene and dictate its interest, then ethnic and cultural diversity is a threat. If the rule of law functions in the country, it shouldn't be considered as a threat.

Everything is for human-being. But, if the government really serves for its citizens and society, then I agree with this argument.

Part II

I don't think, anyone has mono identity. I have different identity in different situation. I am journalist, I am political activist for different people. As identity, I am Turk. But, first of all, I am human. I am right wing.

Right now, religion is used for bad things. If a person is fan of anything, no development may happen in that field. My family members are religious persons. But, I don't think that religion is good phenomenon. Religion is threat.

For me, territory is nation.

Of course, physical borders are important.

Each country has its own national interest. Let's take, Ottoman empire, which Erdogan would like to restore all the territory of this country. But, this would cause huge causality. My father has been killed in the war. But, I never would wish to experience war in our region again.

Part III

Interview 8.Y | 10/20/2016 | Duration: 38 mins 27 seconds.

Hegemony of Russia in the region. Conflict is kept alive to dictate its interest in the South Caucasus. As far as Russia is in the region, Nagorno-Karabakh conflict will not find its peaceful resolution. Russia is even within the government. Since, we have such kind of people in governance of this state, this conflict will not be resolved.

I don't think that we have withdraw Armenians from the Nagorno-Karabakh. As we have some people were born there, there are also some Armenians who also were born in the Nagorno-Karabakh. Cleaning all Armenians from those territories would cause new conflict. We want to get together and solve our problems with them. But, they have to live under the control of Azerbaijan. I only see the resolution of the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict with creation of South Caucasus Union.

For me, the biggest enemy of Azerbaijan is Russia. And, Russia's power is supported by the majority of the local politicians. None of those politicians in Azerbaijan cares about the well-being of the citizens.

As a territory, Nagorno-Karabakh belongs to Azerbaijan; but for a place for living, it also belongs to Armenians, as well.

No, I don't think there is any conflict that we can take as a precedent one for the resolution of the Nagorno-Karabakh.
